

I am completely shocked of the comments I am reading today. Many of you should be questioning the lenders who approved loans that were 100% financed with adjustable rates. The market crashed because of these loans NOT FHA with dpa. It is troubling for me to read these comments because I believe there is a need to help those first time buyers. I hope this program is saved. I would like to mention that I was a recipient of dpa and I have never been late on my payments. Also, like many Americans, I received subsidized student loans which helped me complete my B.S. in 2000. If it wasn't for educational programs and homeownership programs I don't know where I would be. Thank goodness the future of our country is in capable hands and I hope this program is saved!!! Thanks for your time and god bless you.
